

100-page disability website for $295/month

Capture your share of web-surfing Social Security disability claimants with the most sophisticated disability site available. A photo or two is all we need to prepare a customized website for the disability portion of your practice with all the features of www.theMilwaukeeDisabilityAttorney.com:

INCLUDING:

- Growing collection of informative videos
- 6 months of credibility-enhancing educational letters
- Massive library containing a book's worth of content
- E-booklet to gather leads
- Automated case submission form

1. Establish your expertise by answering prospective claimants' most pressing questions with several compelling videos.

2. Draw visitors looking for a good attorney. Optimized headlines and lead-in copy increase the right kind of traffic.

3. Put your best foot forward. Customized biographical copy for the home and accompanying pages is written and rewritten until you are satisfied.

4. Attract local residents. The counties and cities you serve are listed for search engines.

5. Keep your name in front of prospects and build credibility with this 6-month series of 14 educational letters sent automatically from you.

6. Add to your prospect list. Collect names and contact information of people looking for information on disability appeals.

7. Screen prospective clients. We will customize the case-submission form per your wishes to pull in claimants who are either earlier or later in the application/denial/appeal process.

8. Set yourself apart with the largest body of free disability information available on the web. Over 350 single-spaced Word pages went into this collection of detailed and helpful articles and forms.

Have you been denied disability benefits? If you live in Southeast Wisconsin, Social Security disability attorney Tom Bush can help

Most denial of claims for disability benefits can be reversed if knowledgeable Social Security lawyers are retained to handle the appeals. But patience and perseverance are required. As you will see from the award rates below, most disability claimants give up too soon.

- 1. Application level. Initial applicants for Social Security disability will wait on average 120 days to receive an answer, and for 25% it will be you. Out of those rejected at the initial level, 52% will abandon their claim, and 48% will appeal.
- 2. Reconsideration level. Claimants who timely filed their appeals within 90 days of receipt will wait 90 days for a decision. Only 15% will receive good news. Out of those who don't, 33% will give up and 70% will appeal.
- 3. Hearing level. This is where patience and good representation pay off. National claimants will wait 15-2 months for a hearing and decision (Wisconsin claimants will wait 18-20 months), but 55% will be awarded benefits. Of the remainder, 55% will quit and 45% will appeal.
- 4. Appeals Council. Another 220 days are required. Only 2% of claimants will be reworked with benefits; about 23% of claimants will have their claims sent back for another hearing. Most of the rest will give up. Only a few appeal to federal court.
- 5. Federal court. Claimants wait another 540 days for a federal court decision. About half of them will have their claims sent back for another hearing before an administrative law judge. Only a small percentage are awarded benefits by the federal court.

The lesson from these national averages is to pursue your Social Security disability claim through the first three levels — application, reconsideration, and hearing. Most of those who don't give up before the Social Security disability hearing will be awarded benefits.

Social Security disability expertise

If you decide to appeal your Wisconsin disability claim and retain me to help, I will bring 3 important qualities to the fight:

- 1. Experience. I have practiced Social Security disability law in Wisconsin since 1977, and helping Wisconsin disability clients is my sole focus. My peers elected me president of the largest association of Social Security disability attorneys and advocates.
- 2. Knowledge. I am the author of the disability book that many advocates consider the best on their shelves. Even outside of Milwaukee and Wisconsin, Social Security disability lawyers look to me for cutting-edge strategies, forms, and arguments.
- 3. Compassion. I have learned that winning provides my Social Security disability clients more than money. It can also bring independence, validation, and peace of mind. I understand what is at stake, so you will have a devoted Milwaukee disability attorney on your side if I accept your case.

Social Security disability library

My website contains a lengthy book's worth of information on Social Security disability ... all free. I especially recommend these items:

- For a broad, start-to-finish collection of suggestions you should sign up for Free Lessons on Winning Benefits by leaving your e-mail address in the upper right corner.
- If you are appealing a denial or thinking about it, you will want to read the free booklet called Helpful Suggestions for Appealing a Denial (found in the upper right corner).
- For a quick visual summary of appeals, play the educational video above entitled Should You Appeal a Denial?
- To receive a no-obligation evaluation of your Social Security disability case, complete the Claim Evaluation Form to the right.
- If you are looking for an in-depth education on disability, or want to understand how SSA evaluates particular impairments, I recommend the extensive Disability Library below. Especially valuable are the impairment-specific medical source statements found below in Applying for Disability Benefits With...

I hope you find the guidance on my website helpful. If I can further assist you, please call 800-924-0465 or e-mail my office.

Attest: Revised - I handle Social Security disability appeals for clients throughout Southeastern Wisconsin, including these cities and counties: Collins, Rockford, Burlington, Onondaga, Cudahy, Delafield, Delavan, Elkhorn, Port Adams, Franklin, Glendale, Greenfield, Hartford, Jefferson, Kenosha, Lake Geneva, Lake Mills, Madison, Milwaukee, Muskego, New Berlin, Oak Creek, Oconomowoc, Pewaukee, Plymouth, Port Washington, Racine, Sheboygan, Sheboygan Falls, South Milwaukee, St. Francis, Watertown, Waukesha, Wauwatosa, West Allis, West Bend, and Wilmot. Counties: Jefferson, Kenosha, Milwaukee, Ozaukee, Racine, Sheboygan, Waubesa, Washington, and Wisconsin.

Customized for your practice

For your website, we will:

- Research the competition
- Select a search-friendly domain
- Create a fresh design
- Write several custom pages
- Personalize the follow-up letters
- Adapt the case submission form to your practice's intake standards
- Add your photo and contact data to the instructional videos
- Shoot custom videos and stills of you at NOSSCR
- Periodically add new content and videos

Affordable monthly license

Most providers charge $8,000 to $20,000 for a website containing 10-20 pages. Add another $3,000 for a single video. When you pay upfront for a website, you are betting a sizeable sum that your new website will generate enough additional business to pay for itself. We charge no upfront fee to build your 100-page site. Instead, you pay $295/month for our content, videos, domain, and hosting. Updates and additions are included. No matter how many articles we add or custom videos we shoot of you at NOSSCR, your monthly fee remains fixed at $295.

Written by specialists

The other commercially-available disability sites are created by generalists, not disability authors and attorney-editors of James Publishing's caliber. The content on a James disability site meets the same high editorial standards that our Social Security disability books do.

We do the work

Your only requirement is to send us a photo and resume, if you have them. We write your website and video scripts, and send you proofs of each for your review. We then make any changes you request and build your website. From signup to launch, the job takes us about a month, plus whatever time you need for reviewing our proofs.

Want to do more web marketing?

1. We can run a $50, $100, or $150 pay-per-click Google AdWords campaign for your website at no extra charge beyond Google's billings.
2. We will blog on your site at the rate of 2 meaty posts per month for $125/month.
3. If you serve more than one decent-sized city, we can create and maintain a sister website aimed at a second city for $195/month.

We will be striving to keep you happy

- We will make periodic changes to your personal information as you request.
- We continually improve the sites in our network, just as we have done over the years with our law books.
- You may cancel your license anytime after 3 months of paid service for any reason.
